

Tweens, Teens & Screens Parenting Workshop

Do your kids spend too much time watching TV, playing video games, surfing online, or piddling on their phones? Does misbehavior tend to correlate with separating them from their beloved “screens?” Do you need new strategies for successfully disengaging from these activities and reconnecting your children with family and friends? If you’re struggling with how much time your tweens and teens spend in front of a screen, come join our Tweens, Teens & Screens Parenting Workshop!

This workshop includes education and discussion on best practices regarding teen screen time. Parents can expect to learn:

- How to tell if your child is addicted to gaming
- What types of influences screens have on your child’s behavior and personality, and which changes warrant your attention
- Reasonable limits to screen time
- How to build a rewards system that allows your child the “privilege” of earning screen time
- What the potential benefits of screen time might be
